01633 810 081

Professional Qualifications:

First Class Honours Degree

Qualified as Her Majesty's Inspector of Taxes

Qualified as a Member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants

Professional Background:

Became a partner in what is now Deloitte in 1984. Resigned from Deloitte to set up Kilsby & Williams, as a niche firm, largely to provide high quality technical services to businesses and the families that own those businesses.

Background has primarily been in the field of taxation. Has been a tax specialist with HM Revenue & Customs and in the accountancy profession for over thirty years. Client list has included multi-national household names but within the corporate sector has focused largely on privately owned companies.

Specialist Skills:

- Has extensive experience of the income, capital gains and inheritance tax affairs of individuals.
- Has helped families structure their affairs to achieve tax efficiency.
- Commercial taxation background has taken him into the fields of corporate acquisition and thence valuation. As a result Andrew has conducted a second career as an expert witness supporting litigation teams. Within this field his specialisations include company valuations, loss of profits claims and professional negligence issues.

Outside Interests:

Much of Andrew's spare time is spent training in the Korean martial art of Tang Soo Do in which he is a black belt. He also enjoys hill walking, reading books and meditation. He is a fan of rock music and believes nothing is better than two guitars, bass and drums!
